"GOD DEFEND NEW ZEALAND"

God of Nations at Thy feet
In the bonds of love we meet
Hear our voices we entreat
God defend our free land

E Ihowa, Atua
O Nga Iwi O te Ao
Ata whakarongona
Me aroha noa

Guard Pacific's triple star
From the shafts of strife and war
Make her praises heard afar
God defend New Zealand

Kia hua ko te pai
Kia tau to atawhai
Manaakitia mai
Aotearoa

"GAUDEAMUS"

Gaudeamus igitur juvenes dum sumus
Gaudeamus igitur juvenes dum sumus
Post jocundam juventutem
Post molestam senectutem
Nos habebit humus, nos habebit humus

Vivat Academia! Vivant professores!
Vivat Academia! Vivant professores!
Vivat membrum quodlibet
Vivant membra quaelibet
Semper sin in flore! Semper sint in flore!

Vita nostra brevis est, brevi finiatur
Vita nostra brevis est, brevi finiatur
Venit mors velociter
Rapit nos atrociter
Nemini parcetur, nemini parcetur

Music by: WAIKATO TIMES HAMILTON BRASS

Conductor: IAN LEVIEN

Soloist: FRANCIE GRAY

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

CANDIDATES ADMITTED TO DOCTORAL DEGREES

ROSS JONATHAN WILLIAM JAMES

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Having graduated with a BMS at the University of Waikato in 1992, Ross then worked full-time on a DPhil in management systems. His doctoral research investigated the application of search heuristics to the single machine early/tardy scheduling problem. An integral part of the new wave of world class manufacturing, termed Just-in-Time, which demands that all activities take place precisely when they are needed, has created new complexities in machine scheduling. The research used a generalised model which, unlike previous models, allows for different jobs to have different due dates and no restrictions on penalties for early or tardy production. Three recently developed "intelligent" search techniques: simulated annealing, genetic algorithms, and tabu search were investigated as possible solution approaches. Ross found that it is more efficient to apply the search techniques using an early/tardy job specification solution space, rather than by specifying the sequence of job solution space. Two new early/tardy heuristics (approximate methods) were developed enabling, for the first time, the sequencing and timing of the jobs to be determined simultaneously. However, hybrid techniques, incorporating both the heuristic solution space and the sequence of jobs solution space produced superior results.

MARIA THERESIA HUMPHRIES-KIL

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Maria Humphries completed a bachelors degree in philosophy and a masterate in sociology at the University of Waikato. She has been lecturing in the School of Management Studies since 1989 where she teaches and researches in the areas of women and management, career development and the management of not-for-profit organisations. She is co-editor of the Electronic Journal of Radical Organisation Theory. Her doctoral research investigated the nature and New Zealand use of the "management of quality". She argues that this technique has been used to advance both a global standardisation of work and greater control over apparently self-managing employees.

VIVIEN ERICA HENDY

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

After training as a state registered nurse Vivien Webb-Hendy worked overseas for several years before specialising in the welfare of children with disabilities. A Bachelor of Arts degree gained at Victoria University in 1968 changed the direction of interest from medical aspects of disability to educational sociology. In the course of association with families and their children the aim was always to understand the story of disability from a caregiver's perspective. The journey along this path progressed to presenting a MSocSc at Waikato University in 1979.

Life experiences directed Vivien's professional involvement and attitudes to disability and to a need to understand how society manages those categorised as being in this state. To this end, when the mandate was given in the Education Act 1989, for students with special educational and developmental needs to enrol in any state school she felt there was a need to investigate how this philosophy was implemented in the every day life of the schools. The topic of the research was the perception of change and the change process with regard to the inclusion of these children into the regular school. Believing that until we truly value difference or uniqueness in the classroom our education system will remain wanting, and while at the same time the rights of the individual may be demanded, the achievement of acceptance and respect are the important issues in inclusion. The results indicated that the degree that inclusion succeeds depends on whether the school culture supports the changes and professional staff have taken personal responsibility for inclusion.

This work was partly supported by a University of Waikato Postgraduate Scholarship. Future plans include a continuance of this work.

MEGAN RUBY BALKS

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Megan Balks completed a BSc(Hons) in Soil Science at Massey University and then worked for DSIR in Dunedin as a Soil Scientist for three years. She joined the Department of Earth Sciences at the University of Waikato as an assistant lecturer in 1988. Megan is now a lecturer in Earth Sciences and has worked part-time towards her DPhil degree. Her doctoral research investigated the causes of decline in soil permeability as a result of application of meat processing effluent to soils. Her work has potential practical application as a growing range of organisations move towards alternatives to discharge of effluent to surface waters.

FRASER DAVID BROOM

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

After completing a BHortSc(Hons) at Massey University in 1988, Fraser worked as a horticultural consultant for MAF for two and a half years. He then commenced his doctoral studies, investigating variability in populations of fruit on 'Braeburn' apple trees. This research suggested that investigation of physiological relationships in fruit plans may be confounded by sampling effects. It was also shown that an understanding of systematic variation in fruit attributes within the tree canopy offers potential for improved fruit quality, but also for the manipulation of established fruit sampling procedures. In the case of an industry relying on the effectiveness of a fruit sampling technique for quality management and quality assurance, it is essential that fruit sampling procedures can be relied upon to achieve industry objectives. Fraser is currently employed as a scientist at Ruakura by the Horticulture and Food Research Institute of New Zealand, where he continues to research regulation of quality in fruit crops.

GARY JOHN DEPREE

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

After completing his MSc with first class honours in Chemistry, Gary carried out doctoral research in the area of organomanganese chemical compounds, specifically those in which the metal manganese is bonded to carbon in a ring structure. Synthetic and structural studies of these compounds were carried out and their reactions with a variety of reagents were discovered to provide routes to several most unusual chemicals which, as intensive literature surveys revealed, are not accessible by previous methods. Since completing his doctorate, Gary has worked temporarily at Hortresearch, Ruakura, on micotoxin chemistry but he looks forward to a period of postdoctoral research overseas.

ADRIAN JOHN MOLENAAR

Admitted to the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Adrian gained his first degree in Animal Physiology at Otago University and completed a second major in Microbiology while working as a technical officer for MAF. He then joined the Cancer Research group at Otago University and began his DPhil in 1989 in a collaboration between the Department of Biological Sciences and the Dairy Science Group of AgResearch Ruakura. Adrian used molecular biological techniques to show that spatial differences in Bovine milk protein gene expression accompany the temporal changes required during lactation. This heterogeneity in gene expression reinforces previous work which has indicated the potential to manipulate milk production. Adrian is continuing these studies at AgResearch Ruakura.
