Online study in 2022

Frequently asked questions for new international students studying online programmes outside New Zealand

When can I come to New Zealand to study?

The New Zealand Government has announced a full reopening of New Zealand’s borders from 11.59pm 31 July 2022. International student visa applications will be processed from 1 August.

Unfortunately, this will not be in time for you to enrol with us face-to-face for our July 2022 intake, but you will be able to start many of our qualifications online and then transfer to one of our New Zealand campuses once you have received your student visa. Please note that we are not sure how long it will take to have your visa application processed, so please be prepared for this to take several weeks.

For a limited number of programmes, online students will be able to transfer to our campus in November 2022. Otherwise, you can commence on campus in all our available programmes from March 2023.

What can I study in my undergraduate degree?

As much as we would like to, we are not able to offer all papers (units/modules) within every major online. Some papers may be electives or a minor subject. In the Bachelor of Business, for example, you might study a communications paper but your major is marketing. You don’t need to worry because the Bachelor of Business has room for papers outside your major or compulsory papers. Different programmes have different requirements though so you will need to check which papers are available within your programme.

Have a look at the online study paper selection information on our website.

Feel free to speak to our dedicated staff about this.

Is there any reason why my programme would not go ahead?

Our ability to deliver papers online will depend on the number of students that we can enrol in each paper (units/modules). There is a chance that we may not enrol enough students to deliver some of our papers. In this case, we will offer you alternatives and do our best to find something that works for you.

To help us, please accept your offer and commit to your qualification as soon as you can. This helps us to understand if we have enough students to deliver our courses.

What is the tuition fee discount?

The University is offering a 20% tuition fee discount to all new international students who start their qualification online outside New Zealand in 2022. This discount does not apply once you transfer to New Zealand to study at our Hamilton or Tauranga campus.

How do I apply for the tuition fee discount?

There is no need to apply – it will be applied to the tuition fees that are generated by the papers (units/modules) you choose when you enrol with us.
How much is the tuition fee discount?

The actual amount will depend on the number of papers (units/modules) you enrol in and what the tuition fee is for each of those papers.

How many papers do I need to enrol in to get the discount?

There is no minimum requirement to be eligible for the discount. International students who enrol online do not need a student visa while they study online so you can enrol in as many, or as few papers as you feel comfortable with.

If you wish to study full time, we suggest you do four papers (60 points) in a trimester.

How do I receive the tuition fee discount?

We will make you an offer for a qualification and in the offer letter we will include information on the 20% tuition fee discount. Once you accept your offer and choose your papers, we will calculate your fees with the 20% discount added. To complete your enrolment online, you will need to pay your tuition fees.

Please download the Offshore/online Students Enrolment Guide for further information about accepting your offer, paper selection and completing your enrolment.

Do I receive the tuition fee discount if I study on campus?

The discount only applies to students who are offshore and are studying online. Once borders open and you travel to New Zealand, your tuition fees will revert to our published on-campus tuition fees.

Will students who are progressing from the University of Waikato College programmes be eligible for the 20% tuition fee discount?

Yes, if you have completed a programme through the University of Waikato College and are progressing to degree qualification at the University you will be eligible for the 20% discount. This is provided that you are still studying online and are offshore.

Are there any other costs associated with online study?

All students of the University are required to pay a Student Services Levy while they are studying. This levy covers the cost of accessing many of our services online.

Do I need medical insurance?

While studying offshore, there is no requirement to hold medical insurance.

When you come to New Zealand to resume your studies face-to-face, a fee for medical and travel insurance will be added to your offer letter and tuition invoice. This is a requirement for your international student visa.

There is more information about medical insurance for overseas students, including associated fees here.

It is important to understand that not all these programmes are available to be completed online. We have noted which programmes can be completed fully online on our website.

I want to get a post study work visa. How do I ensure that I am still eligible for this visa if I start my studies online?

On 11 May 2022, the New Zealand Government announced changes to post study work rights and students’ eligibility for this. For a full summary of this information you must refer to the Immigration New Zealand website.

Post study work visa eligibility changes

Students will continue to be eligible for post study work rights if they are studying a bachelor’s degree, bachelor honours degree, postgraduate diploma, master’s or doctoral degree that they have studied full time in New Zealand for a minimum of 30 weeks.

For students undertaking a qualification at Level 7 and below (excluding bachelor’s degrees), they will only be eligible for post-study work rights if the qualification is relevant to an occupation on the Green List. This includes Graduate Diplomas and Diplomas at Level 7.

Duration of post study work visas changes

For students who have studied a qualification eligible for post study work rights, the duration of post study work visas will now match the duration of a student’s study in New Zealand, except for masters and PhD students who will continue to be eligible for a three-year post study work visa.

One post study work visa per person

International students will no longer be able to apply for a second post study work visa following additional study.

Implementation

The changes apply from the date of announcement, 11 May 2022, though there are some transitional arrangements.

Transitional approach

Any student who is already enrolled in (or has an Offer of place for) an eligible programme/qualification under the old settings AND who either holds a student visa for that specific programme or had applied for a student visa for that specific programme on or before 11 May 2022, will be considered under the old post study settings.

To be considered under old settings a person must also apply for a post study work visa before 11 May 2025.

Changes to funds requirements

Funds requirements for student applicants have been raised. The changes apply to all student visa applications received on or after 31 July 2022.

- Tertiary and English language student visa applicants will need to show cost of living funds of NZD$20,000 per annum for study that is 36 weeks or longer (up from NZD$15,000).
- This amount will be pro-rated for shorter lengths of study.

Students will need to pay the first year’s tuition fees, or the tuition fees for the first programme (whichever is the shorter) and they will need to prove living cost funds requirements for the same period.

These funds requirements will be reviewed every three years to ensure that students continue to have reasonable expectations about the cost of living in NZ.

The Immigration New Zealand website has been updated with the latest information on these announcements.
When should I apply for a student visa to travel to New Zealand?

You can apply for a visa any time from 1 August 2022 onwards. You should allow three (3) months for your visa to be processed.

I am planning to study a qualification worth 120 points. I will do 30 points online before I travel to NZ to complete my programme on campus so will only have 90 points to complete when I come to New Zealand. Will I still be eligible for a student visa?

Yes. You are eligible for a student visa if you study at least 90 points over two trimesters. Please read the question below for important information on this.

Will I still be eligible for a post study work visa if I only study 90 points onshore?

The Immigration New Zealand Post Study Work Visa Policy requires you to study full-time in New Zealand for 30 weeks. If you complete 90 points over two trimesters in New Zealand and you hold a single student visa for this study, you will meet this requirement.

Will I still be eligible to work during my studies if I only study 90 points onshore?

Yes, if you are studying a programme that’s at least 120 points in total and you studying for 8 months or more (over two trimesters), you will be eligible to work 20 hours a week during term time and full-time during the school holidays.

The end date that is stated on my offer letter is different to the actual end date of my programme if I commence online. What should I do?

Our online offer letter reflects the normal duration of your programme. Offer letters are what we provide to new students, for them to use to obtain a student visa. As you will be a returning student when you commence onshore, you will use your Enrolment Agreement to apply for your student visa, not an offer letter. This document is what Immigration New Zealand refer to as a ‘confirmation of enrolment’.

This document will be generated once you have chosen your onshore papers and have paid your fees. Your Enrolment Agreement will show the number of papers you have chosen, the fees you have paid, the location of your study and the duration of your study. You will be eligible for a full year student visa if you are enrolled in and have paid for at least 90 points over two trimesters. If you only enrol in and pay for papers in one trimester then you will only obtain a visa for six months.

If you have longer than 6 – 12 months left to study, the University will provide you with a letter that indicates your revised finish date which you can provide to INZ.

Note that, in order to be eligible to apply for post study work rights, students must be studying in New Zealand on a single student visa so students need to enrol (choose their papers and pay) for a full year.

This confirmation of enrolment should be submitted to Immigration New Zealand to support your visa application. The University has consulted with Immigration New Zealand and they have advised that this document is what is required.
